Iris: Iris supplied code from her personal project in order to help start off the project. This code included the sql database, a login page, a sign up page, and others which did not make the final project. She also created the code and html file in order to search for events.

Sarah: Sarah used Iris's code as a base, fixed any errors, modified it to fit an event application, and added all other pages including event creation, event pages, registration, event manager accounts, and student accounts. She also created the restful API that allows for event creation through the back end rather than on the user's page.

CJ: CJ created the HTML files, which were the face of Eventify and allowed for the user's understanding of error handling, access to pages, and ease of use. He also managed the final presentation.
